Independent, Science-Based Evidence To Empower Canadians

View this newsletter in your browser

Hello Sonya,

At the Canadian Covid Care Alliance we are dedicated to sharing evidence-based information to empower Canadians to remain safe and healthy. We believe the time is now for Canadians to come together and mend our broken ties.

This newsletter issue introduces the Rounding the Earth Podcast as well as Vitality magazine's article on the Citizens' Hearing and more.

About Us

Rounding the Earth Podcast

In their podcast Rounding the Earth, Matthew Crawford and Liam Sturgess interview Dr. Stephen Pelech and Dr. James Lyons-Weiler. They discuss a number of issues surrounding the topic of COVID-19 including a general overview of natural immunity and its ability to protect us from SARS-CoV-2, virology, COVID-19 genetic vaccine safety and efficacy, the fundamentals of science, and the CCCA's Stop the Shots Campaign.

Vaccine-Injured People, Along with Doctors and Lawyers, Speak Out at the Citizens' Hearing

Vitality magazine, the popular Canadian natural health publication, has published an article about CCCA's Citizens' Hearing, which occurred in June in Toronto. The article is a short and concise report of the hearings, which "provided much emotional and scientific material to be absorbed and processed by our collective hearts and minds."

Vaccine-Injured People, Along with Doctors and Lawyers, Speak Out Against Canada’s Covid Mandates

👤 Vitality Magazine 🕒 July 27, 2022

Canadians injured by COVID-19 vaccines were among those who reported their tragic stories to a three-day Citizens’ Hearing in June of this year. The hearing was organized by the Canadian Covid Care Alliance (CCCA), a group that includes over 600 independent Canadian doctors, scientists and health care practitioners who are not connected with government or pharmaceutical companies.

The hearing took place in Toronto from June 22 to 24 and also heard from doctors, lawyers and scientific experts who questioned the decisions to enforce vaccines, masks and lock downs as the only approach to battling COVID-19 across Canada.

Veteran reporter Trish Wood presided over the hearing. Veteran Canadian politician Preston Manning was among the panelists who heard testimony from Canadians injured by vaccines that they were often coerced to receive, those who lost their livelihood for not complying, and many others.

In total there were about 60 speakers, all of whom affirmed that what they said was “true to their knowledge to the best of their ability to know that.”

We just received notice from a streaming channel, which shall not be named, that discussing past “mistakes” by Big Pharma violates the content policy...crazy. Apparently, informing the people who use that streaming service that pharmaceutical companies have manufactured drugs that killed people, instead of helping them. And apparently, the well-documented, often decades-old news is “harmful”. It is Bizarro world indeed.

Twitter and Facebook to censor vaccine discourse — this must stop

BY LIZ PEEK, OPINION CONTRIBUTOR - 12/21/20 8:00 AM ET

THE VIEWS EXPRESSED BY CONTRIBUTORS ARE THEIR OWN AND NOT THE VIEW OF THE HILL

Twitter and Facebook suppressed the Hunter Biden scandal. They controlled what we could say about COVID-19. They stomped on reports of election fraud.

Now, the social media behemoths are deciding what Americans can or cannot read about the new COVID vaccines.

This is unacceptable. It may even be dangerous.

Earlier this month, Facebook promised to remove “false claims about these vaccines that have been debunked by public health experts.” They didn’t specify which public health experts, but said they would “update the claims we remove based on guidance from public health authorities as they learn more...”

Twitter just recently jumped aboard, saying that in 2021, they “may label or place a warning on Tweets that advance unsubstantiated rumors, disputed claims, as well as incomplete or out-of-context information about vaccines.”

In other words, even though the COVID vaccines are new and, by normal standards, untested, these social media firms will not permit naysayers to challenge their effectiveness or safety.

How the Biden administration let right-wing attacks derail its disinformation efforts

Now, just three weeks after its announcement, the Disinformation Governance Board is being “paused,” according to multiple employees at DHS, capping a back-and-forth week of decisions that changed during the course of reporting of this story. On Monday, DHS decided to shut down the board, according to multiple people with knowledge of the situation. By Tuesday morning, Jankowicz had drafted a resignation letter in response to the board’s dissolution.

Department of Homeland Security advisers urged the agency Monday to scrap the Disinformation Governance Board the Biden administration created this year only to watch it implode amid confusion and partisan quarreling over its role.

A Homeland Security Advisory Council subcommittee concluded in a one-sentence draft recommendation that there was “no need” for the disinformation board and the council endorsed the recommendation at its meeting.

Officials said they created the board in April to fight disinformation-fueled extremism that might endanger national security, but Republicans and conservative media portrayed it as an Orwellian tool that could infringe on privacy and free speech.

The board’s director resigned after a few weeks amid a wave of online criticism, and Homeland Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas asked the advisory council to study the issue.

Michael Chertoff, co-chair of the council subcommittee that drafted the recommendation and a former DHS secretary, did not explain the panel’s reasoning before the broader council voted to approve the recommendation Monday. He said the subcommittee is working on a full report on disinformation due Aug. 3.

NY Times frets about the death of Disinfo Governance Board: ‘Left openings for new waves of disinformation’

The Disinformation Governance Board was put on 'pause' back in May

"There is wide agreement across the federal government that coordinated disinformation campaigns threaten to exacerbate public health emergencies, stoke ethnic and racial divisions and even undermine democracy itself. The board’s fate, however, has underscored how deeply partisan the issue has become in Washington, making it nearly impossible to consider addressing the threat," Myers and Sullivan wrote.

"The failure to act, according to experts, has left openings for new waves of disinformation ahead of November’s midterm elections," they continued.

How the CDC Coordinated With Big Tech To Censor Americans

Joseph Simonson • July 27, 2022 5:31 pm

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention coordinated with social media companies and Google to censor users who expressed skepticism or criticism of COVID-19 vaccines, according to a trove of internal communications obtained by America First Legal and shared exclusively with the Washington Free Beacon.

Over the course of at least six months, starting in December 2020, CDC officials regularly communicated with personnel at Twitter, Facebook, and Google over "vaccine misinformation." At various times, CDC officials would flag specific posts by users on social media platforms such as Twitter as "example posts."

In one email to a CDC staffer, a Twitter employee said he is "looking forward to setting up regular chats" with the agency. Other emails show the scheduling of meetings with the CDC over how to best police alleged misinformation about COVID-19 vaccines.

Although many of the posts flagged by the CDC contained false information about the COVID-19 vaccines, the efforts to police misinformation also resulted in mistaken acts of censorship. An April 2021 email from a CDC staffer to Facebook states that the "algorithms that Facebook and other social media networks are apparently using to screen out posting by sources of vaccine misinformation are also apparently screening out valid public health messaging, including [Wyoming] Health communications."

The communications reveal a high level of coordination between the government and tech industry during the pandemic and raise questions about the extent to which other private companies are working with the federal government to censor the public. The Biden administration has faced criticism for engaging in what some have called "Orwellian" practices, such as the establishment of the Department of Homeland Security Disinformation Governance Board. The Free Beacon reported that the now-shuttered disinformation board arranged a meeting with a Twitter executive who blocked users from sharing stories about Hunter Biden's laptop.

One email shows a senior CDC official appeared at Google's 2020 "Trusted Media Summit." The conference, according to its website, was "for journalists, fact-checkers, educators, researchers and others who work in the area of fact-checking, verification, media literacy, and otherwise fighting misinformation."

One of the organizers of the conference asked the senior CDC official for permission to post her remarks on YouTube. That official declined, saying she was not authorized to speak publicly.

In the same email chain with a senior CDC official, a Google staffer offers to promote an initiative from the World Health Organization about "addressing the COVID-19 infodemic and strengthen community resilience against misinformation." That same Google staffer offers to introduce the CDC official to a Google colleague who is "working on programs to counter immunization misinfo."

Facebook also awarded the CDC with $15 million in ad credits for the company's platforms in April 2021, according to several emails.

"This gift will be used by CDC's COVID-19 response to support the agency's messages on Facebook, and extend the reach of COVID-19-related Facebook content, including messages on vaccines, social distancing, travel, and other priority communication messages," an internal CDC memo reads.

A Facebook official says the platform has been transparent about its work with public health organizations "to address health misinformation." The platform also says it has asked its internal oversight board to assess whether its "current COVID-19 misinformation policy is still appropriate now that the pandemic has evolved."

Twitter and Google declined to comment. The CDC did not respond to a request for comment.

Trusted News Initiative

The Trusted News Initiative (TNI) is an international alliance of news media, social media and technology corporations described as a “real-time, early warning system to flag serious disinformation that may pose a threat to life or the integrity of the electoral process.”<sup>1)</sup>

History

Origin

The TNI was officially announced in September 2019 following an event called the Trusted News Summit convened by the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC).<sup>2)</sup> A BBC media release cites “recent events such as the Indian elections” as the inciting incidents leading to the group's creation.<sup>3)</sup> <sup>4)</sup> <sup>5)</sup>

Shift of Focus

In July 2020, the TNI announced it was working to “combat the spread of disinformation during the upcoming U.S. Presidential election.”<sup>6)</sup>

Though its initial mandate was related to elections, the TNI announced in March 2020 that it “will extend its efforts to identifying false and potentially harmful Coronavirus information” - just over two weeks after the World Health Organization (WHO)'s declaration of the multinational SARS-CoV-2 outbreak as a “pandemic”.<sup>7)</sup> <sup>8)</sup> Then, “with the introduction of several possible new COVID-19 vaccines” at the end of 2020, the TNI shifted again “to focus on combatting the spread of harmful vaccine disinformation.”<sup>9)</sup>

Membership

The initial group consisted of the European Broadcasting Union (EBU), Facebook, Financial Times, First Draft, Google, The Hindu, and the Wall Street Journal. Other groups including AFP, CBC/Radio-Canada, Microsoft, Reuters, the Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism, and Twitter joined the alliance shortly after.

Todd –

We wanted to point out two issues that we are seeing a great deal of misinfo about – vaccine shedding and microchips. The below are just some example posts. We do plan to post something shortly to address vaccine shedding and I can send that link soon. Our census team copied here, has much more info on it if needed.

Also, we are standing up a BOLO COVID misinformation meeting and inviting all tech platforms. We are shooting for 12pm EST on Friday for our first meeting. I'll include you on the invite but if you'd like to propose an alternative approach or would like to me include others, just let me know.

Monkeypox: US declares outbreak a public health emergency

🕒 21 hours ago

| Cases of the virus have topped 6,600 in the US, according to health officials

The US government has declared the monkeypox outbreak a public health emergency following a spike in cases.

<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-62424157>

Monkeypox can infect anyone, but the majority of cases in the US outbreak have been among men who have sex with men, including gay and bisexual men and people who identify as transgender. Close contact with an infected individual is required for the spread of the monkeypox virus, experts say.

The CDC initially announced vaccines for monkeypox were being released from the Strategic National Stockpile and offered to the "high-risk" contacts of monkeypox patients, as well as the health care workers treating them. Federal health officials have since expanded vaccination efforts to focus on the broader community of men who have sex with men, the demographic that makes up most US monkeypox cases.

In addition to providing vaccines, the CDC has said since June it has made a concerted effort to do extensive education and outreach to the LGBTQ community.

Possible change to how vaccine is administered

Health officials are considering changing the way monkeypox vaccine doses are administered because the country is "at a critical inflection point" with the virus' spread, US Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Dr. Robert Califf told reporters on Thursday.

"In recent days, it's become clear to all of us that given the continued spread of the virus, we're at a critical inflection point, dictating the need for additional solutions to address the rise in infection rates," Califf said. "The goal has always been to vaccinate as many people as possible."

The commissioner said officials are considering allowing health care providers to be able to use a dose-sharing method where one vial of Jynneos vaccine -- previously used as one dose -- will be used to administer up to five separate doses.

This approach would change the way Jynneos is administered, Califf said. Instead of the vaccine being administered in the fat layer under the skin, it will be delivered underneath the skin layer.

As Monkeypox Spreads, U.S. Declares a Health Emergency

The designation will free up emergency funds and lift some bureaucratic hurdles, but many experts fear containment may no longer be possible.

The declaration by Xavier Becerra, President Biden's health secretary, marks just the fifth such national emergency since 2001, and comes as the country remains in a state of emergency over the coronavirus pandemic. The World Health Organization declared a global health emergency over the outbreak late last month.

Mr. Becerra's announcement, at an afternoon news briefing where he was joined by a raft of other top health officials, gives federal agencies power to quickly direct money toward developing and evaluating vaccines and drugs, to gain access to emergency funding and to hire additional workers to help manage the outbreak, which began in May.

"We're prepared to take our response to the next level in addressing this virus," Mr. Becerra said, adding that "we urge every American to take monkeypox seriously, and to take responsibility to help us tackle this virus."

Mr. Biden has faced intense pressure from public health experts and activists to move more aggressively to combat monkeypox, which has infected more than 6,600 people in the United States. Lawrence O. Gostin, a health law expert at Georgetown University, called Thursday's declaration "a pivotal turning point in the monkeypox response, after a lackluster start."

Supplies of the monkeypox vaccine, called Jynneos, have been severely constrained, and the administration has been criticized for moving too slowly to expand the number of doses. Less than a decade ago, the United States had 20 million Jynneos doses; by May, the vast majority of them had expired.

In echoes of the early coronavirus response, tests have been difficult to obtain, surveillance has been spotty and it has been challenging to get an accurate count of cases. The administration has also been faulted for not doing enough to educate people in the L.G.B.T.Q. community, who are at high risk, before gay pride celebrations in June.

"We have 5 percent of the world's population and 25 percent of the world's cases," said Dr. Carlos del Rio, an infectious disease physician at Emory University in Atlanta. "That, to me, honestly, is a failure. We were caught sleeping at the wheel."

To address the vaccine shortage, Dr. Robert Califf, the Food and Drug Administration commissioner, who joined Mr. Becerra on Thursday, said his agency was exploring a strategy that would expand the number of available Jynneos doses by administering the shots differently — into layers of the skin, rather than the fat underneath. If it works, one-fifth of the current dose could be used to protect against the virus.

President Biden Announces Team to Lead Monkeypox Response

Today, President Biden named FEMA's Robert Fenton as the White House National Monkeypox Response Coordinator and Dr. Demetre Daskalakis as the White House National Monkeypox Response Deputy Coordinator. Fenton and Daskalakis will lead the Administration's strategy and operations to combat the current monkeypox outbreak, including equitably increasing the availability of tests, vaccinations and treatments.

Robert Fenton currently serves as Regional Administrator for FEMA Region 9 in the American West, with nearly 50 million people in his area of responsibility. One of the Nation's most experienced and effective emergency management leaders, Robert Fenton has twice served as Acting Administrator of FEMA and led multiple challenging prevention, response and recovery operations throughout his long and distinguished career, including for natural disasters, disease outbreaks, and complex humanitarian operations.

Demetre Daskalakis, a leading public health expert, is currently Director of the CDC Division of HIV Prevention. Widely known as a national expert on health issues affecting the LGBGQIA+ communities, his clinical practice has focused on providing care for the underserved LGBTQIA+ communities. He previously oversaw management of infectious diseases for the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, one of the largest departments in the nation – including in serving as incident commander for the City’s COVID-19 response.

Partnership with the Munich Security Conference*

SUMMARY

In March 2021, NTI partnered with the Munich Security Conference to conduct a tabletop exercise on reducing high-consequence biological threats. The exercise examined gaps in national and international biosecurity and pandemic preparedness architectures—exploring opportunities to improve prevention and response capabilities for high-consequence biological events. This report summarizes the exercise scenario, key findings from the discussion, and actionable recommendations for the international community.

CANADA WORRIED ABOUT SMALLPOX IN APRIL 2022

-  Canada: On 21 April, Public Services and Procurement Canada published a tender request seeking to stockpile doses of smallpox vaccine to be prepared in the event of a future accidental or intentional release of the virus.<sup>[160]</sup> The contract for 500,000 doses closed on 5 May, and was awarded to Bavarian Nordic.<sup>[161]</sup> On 24 May, the Public Health Agency of Canada stated that they were in the process of extracting Imvamune vaccines from their National Emergency Strategic Stockpile for deployment across the country, starting with the province of Quebec.<sup>[162]</sup> On 26 May, Quebec announced that Imvamune vaccines would be made available to those who have been in close contact with confirmed or suspected monkeypox cases.<sup>[163]</sup> On 7 June, PHAC announced that travellers returning to Canada may be subject to a mandatory quarantine period if they become ill with monkeypox, and warned that quarantined travellers may have restricted access to health care and delays returning home.<sup>[164]</sup>

The screenshot shows the Buyandsell.gc.ca website, which is the Public Services and Procurement Canada (PSPC) procurement portal. The header includes the website name and a search bar. The main navigation bar has tabs for 'For Businesses', 'For Government', 'Goods and Services', 'Applications', and 'Procurement Data'. The breadcrumb trail indicates the path: Home > Procurement Data > Tenders > Search > Third Generation Smallpox Vaccine (6D024-215700/A). The title of the tender notice is 'Third Generation Smallpox Vaccine (6D024-215700/A)'. A yellow banner promotes 'CanadaBuys' and encourages suppliers to register. Below the banner, the tender notice is titled 'Tender Notice - Advance Contract Award Notice (ACAN)' and shows a status of 'Awarded'.

<https://buyandsell.gc.ca/procurement-data/tender-notice/PW-PH-893-81160>

Purpose of ACAN:

Public Services and Procurement Canada proposes to negotiate a contract with Bavarian Nordic A/S on behalf of the Public Health Agency of Canada (PHAC) for the purchase of Imvamune®.

Definition of Requirement:

Imvamune® is a third generation, live-attenuated and non-replicating smallpox vaccine. It is indicated for active immunization against smallpox disease for persons determined to be at high risk for smallpox infection. Although smallpox disease is currently considered to be eradicated, PHAC is procuring a stockpile of the vaccine to immunize Canadians against smallpox disease should a risk ever arise where smallpox is intentionally or unintentionally released.

Canada considering smallpox vaccine for monkeypox cases, says Dr. Theresa Tam

Public Services and Procurement Canada put out a tender last month to purchase 500,000 doses of the Imvamune smallpox vaccine on behalf of the Public Health Agency of Canada from 2023 to 2028.

"Although smallpox disease is currently considered to be eradicated, PHAC is procuring a stockpile of the vaccine to immunize Canadians against smallpox disease should a risk ever arise where smallpox is intentionally or unintentionally released," the tender read.

Health Canada has also approved that vaccine, from Danish biotech company Bavarian Nordic, for use to prevent monkeypox.

The company announced Thursday it had secured a deal with an unnamed European country to supply its vaccine in response to monkeypox cases.

There is still a sense of mystery surrounding the sudden appearance of the virus in Canada, the U.S., Australia and several parts of Europe.

The Wealth Theory of Vaccine Efficacy Confounding Gets a Boost

The Vaccine Wars Part XLVIII

Pun intended, of course.

A couple of months ago, I ran some analyses on U.S. countywide data carefully put together from several sources. What I found was that

1. There were small and inconsistent correlations that pointed to Vaccine Efficacy (VE).
2. These correlations matched perfectly with county wealth differentials.
3. The county-level mortality data from 2019 was highly predictive of the same data from 2021, just slightly scaled.

In other words, the mild VE noted in U.S. statistics, that does not seem to match results from elsewhere in the world, much less global summaries, seems to be entirely explained by wealth effects that do not otherwise fall into variable categories we usually examine for confounding effects. And that makes sense when you think about the way Mendellian genetics studies rarely find substantial effects without aggregating hundreds or thousands of genes. Wealth improves lives in innumerable ways.
